Show and Tell

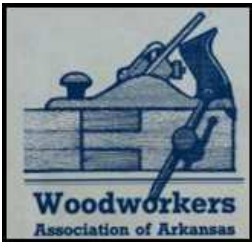

Several years ago Ken Glasscock decided he would carve the heads of several different figures. This is just one of several. He carved them out of bass wood and then painted them.

Pat Morris decided to try his hand at making bandsaw boxes after seeing many different shapes and sizes at the May program. He found some scrap cherry and went to work cutting and gluing. When he was done, he had boxes inside and inside of more boxes.

Moe Hansen made this walnut bench for his grandchildren. He used #1 walnut because it had a lot of interesting figure in the boards. The finish is a homemade wipe-on satin polyurethane.
